More Self Help Necessary, Ike Advises Europe

By D. HAROLD OLIVER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower told Congress today Western nations should strive for greater self-help toward collective security because American aid "cannot do the whole job."

His report reviewed the mutual security program for the six months ended last June 30. It said Soviet Russia continues a serious threat to peace and that U. S. aid to check Communist expansion now is shifting in emphasis from Europe to Asia and the Pacific.

"While it is clear that the strength needed by other free nations cannot be developed and maintained without substantial American assistance, the report declared, 'It is equally clear that the mutual security program alone cannot do the whole job.'

"Other measures are necessary, and it is important that the mutual security program and our foreign relations as a whole be conducted in such a way as to facilitate the taking of these measures."

Ratification of the European Defense Community Treaty, trade expansion, and greater investment of private capital in underdeveloped countries were three steps President mentioned.

Eisenhower limited his own remarks to a two-sentence letter of transmittal saying America's safety is "inextricably tied in with the security and well-being of other free nations." By forwarding the report to Congress, however, he endorsed it in effect.

The report said during the current fiscal year ending June 30, 1954, the Foreign Operations Administration (FOA), which recently absorbed the Mutual Security Agency, will have $6,600,000,000 to spend or obligate, including $1.2 billion of new money.

"In drawing up the new fiscal year's program," it said, "emphasis was shifted more toward Asia and the Pacific. Including the special assistance for Indochina, about 37 per cent of the new funds for the 1954 program will be for Asia, compared with 14 per cent in the previous fiscal year. The European program will drop from 73 per cent of the total funds in 1953 to 50 per cent in 1954."

Russia Assured of Seat at Peace Table

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — Russia appeared assured today of a seat at the forthcoming Korean political conference—if her satellites North Korea and Communist China want her there, India's chances of being asked to the party dimmed, however.

Diplomats, gathering for the U. N. General Assembly beginning this afternoon, freely predicted approval of a carefully worded Western resolution tossing the issue of Soviet participation to the Communist side.

Two British Commonwealth countries—Australia and New Zealand—came up with this formula yesterday to patch up part of the split between the United States and Britain. Both agreed to support it.

The Anglo-American differences over the proposed inclusion of India at the conference table, however, remained as great as ever, and it was doubtful whether India could win a two-thirds majority in the 60-nation Assembly.

U. S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. said frankly yesterday that the United States would not vote for a British-sponsored resolution to include India in the conference.

Burns Fatal to Jonesboro Man

MARKED TRED (AP) — Hubert W. Sharpe, 22, of Harrisburg, Conn., died at a Jonesboro hospital yesterday of burns suffered Saturday when he was sprayed by burning gasoline while cleaning farm machinery.

W. W. Payne, Sharpe's employer, said no one was near the farmworker when the accident occurred. Payne said he believed the gasoline ignited from a discarded match.

His Hobby Is Avoiding All Kinds of Hobbies and Staying Clear of People With Hobbies

By SAUL PETT
For Hal Boyle
NEW YORK (AP) — My hobby, if anybody cares, is avoiding hobbies.

To be more precise, my hobby is avoiding people who insist I should try their hobby. It will change my whole life, they say, give me new perspective, added freshness, escape, relief from frustration and the commonplace.

Baloney. If I want to be dull and unhappy, that's my privilege. Leave me be. Anyway, I have my doubts about the enthusiasm of new hobbyists out on the stump. I mean those lobbyists who live, and breathe the stuff all the time. You know the kind. The hobbyist and his wife will drop over for a drink. He will remain glum and silent during the small talk about

Denies Report Syria's Strong Man Killed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Unconfirmed reports circulated in Lebanon today that Syria's President Adib Shishkely had been assassinated in Damascus, his body buried in the Syrian capital.

But authoritative Syrian sources here denied the reports.

The Syrian sources said the reports were part of an organized campaign by enemies of the Syrian president.

The reports said unknown assailants mowed down Shishkely with machinegun fire as he stepped from a bulletproof car.

This dispatch did not disclose the source of the report of the assassination. News usually seeps quickly over the Syrian-Lebanese border, though an official announcement on an event of this kind might be bottled up in Damascus for several hours.

35 Die in Morocco Uprising

CASABLANCA, Morocco (AP) — French soldiers and police kept an uneasy watch over the main cities of Morocco today, seeking to avoid new outbreaks of violence over religious leadership of the North African protectorate. Thirty-five persons died in bloody riots over the weekend.

The fighting followed a proclamation Saturday by some 300 Berber chieftains and the Pasha of Marrakech, Thami el Glaoui, that the Sultan of Morocco, Sidi Mohammed Ben Youssef, no longer was the religious leader of the Muslim country.

They named as imam — "leader of the faithful" — the Sultan's uncle Moulay Mohammed Ben Arafa. They backed down, however, from a previous decision to install him as the new sultan.

The sultans previously have been considered both the temporal and spiritual rulers of the country.

The move against Sidi Mohammed touched off riots in Marrakech Saturday night which claimed seven lives.

Sixteen more deaths were reported from Oujda, eastern Morocco, yesterday and 12 from Casablanca. A curfew was installed in Oujda, and communication by telephone and telegraph was cut off.

Fellow Worker Links Printing Employee to Reds

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government printing office employee identified a fellow worker, Edward Rothschild, face-to-face today as a longtime member of the Communist party.

James Phillips, a bookbinding machine operator, told Senate investigators that Rothschild had no direct access to secret material in the government printing plan but could easily get such material from other workers.

Phillips confronted the slightly built, pipe-smoking Rothschild at a hearing by the Senate investigation subcommittee, which is looking for evidence that secret material in the government printing office has been leaked to the Communists.

Phillips testified he first met Rothschild in 1938. He identified Rothschild as one of 25 or 30 persons who attended a meeting in a private home to organize a Communist cell in the government printing office.

Later, Phillips said, Rothschild and a Fred Sillers approached him on the street and asked him in a "threatening and belligerent" attitude whether he was for or against their efforts to organize such a cell.

Phillips said he thought it over and gave them their answer by going before the House Committee on Un-American Activities, then headed by Rep. Dies (D-Tex.), and testifying about the whole affair.

Phillips also testified he once saw another fellow worker, Bortha Lomax, try to leave the government printing office with secret material in her pocket.

That employee continued to work at the printing office for three months after she was caught, Phillips said.

Earlier, a former FBI undercover agent identified Rothschild's wife, Esther, as an active worker for Communist party organization in the 1940's.

Mrs. Mary Markward of Silver Springs, Md., who said she associated with Communists and reported to the FBI, pointed to Mrs. Rothschild at a Senate hearing and said she "most definitely" knew her in the Communist movement.

Under questioning, Mrs. Markward said she could not say, however, whether Edward Rothschild, husband of Mrs. Rothschild, was a member of the Communist party.

Mrs. Markward was the first witness in public hearings by the Senate investigation subcommittee into alleged leading of secret date from the government's printing plant.

Chairman McCarthy (R-Wis.) said at the outset the matter is one of alleged espionage.

"If the testimony that has been given previously in secret session is true, then there is a very serious question of espionage," McCarthy said.

Mossadegh in Full Power of Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Aged Premier Mohammed Mossadegh held supreme power in Iran today after crushing a bloodless attempt to oust him by supporters of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

The young ruler and his beautiful Queen Soraya fled to neighboring Iraq and Communist mobs screamed for an end to the monarchy.

Acting swiftly in the wake of the attempt against him early yesterday, Mossadegh jailed top leaders of his opposition and dissolved the 34-year-old monarch had not abdicated, the government was believed readying a regency council to take over his powers.

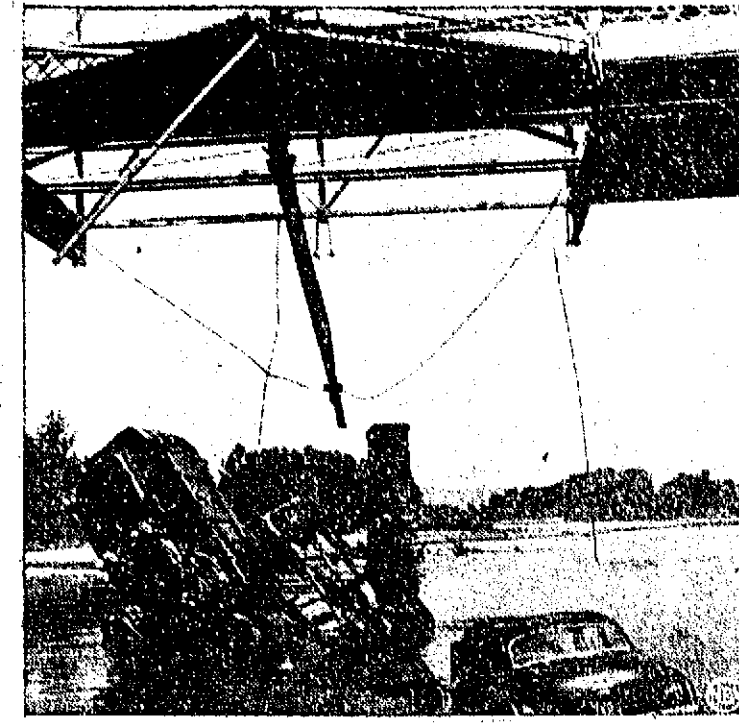

Police and troops, armed with rifles and sten guns, started a determined hunt for the rebel leader. Tehran radio broadcast orders from Mossadegh to customs and frontier forces to prevent his escape abroad at any cost.

Tension lessened in Tehran today as truckloads of armed troops and Sherman tanks called out by Mossadegh rumbled back to their barracks and bases. Yesterday the streets had bristled with troops protecting the government against their titular commander in chief, the Shah.

Stewardess Hurt by Motor Propeller

LAKE ARROWHEAD, Calif. (AP) — A young airline stewardess was in a critical condition today after being mangled by the propeller of a fast boat owned by a local owner Conrad Hillen.

The stewardess, Miss Boni Buchler, 25, of Hollywood, was pulled from the waters of Lake Arrowhead yesterday by Gary Steffen, ex-husband of actress Jane Powell. Steffen was water skiing behind the boat when the accident occurred.

No Desire to Serve If Not Wanted—India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru said today that India has "no desire" to attend the Korean political conference unless the major parties at the purky table want her and "unless it is clear that we can perform some useful function in the interests of peace."

In a foreign policy review to Parliament, heard also by visiting Pakistan Premier Mohammed Ali, Nehru said India's custodial force assigned to guard prisoners of war at Pannunjom would begin leaving Madras by sea tomorrow.

Within a few days, he said, 4,000 Indian soldiers will be en route to Korea. Lt. Gen. K. S. Thimayya, India's representative to chairman the Neutral Repatriation Commission, will leave the first week in September, the Premier added.

In a pointed reference to the recent talks between U. S. Secretary of State Dulles and South Korean President Syngman Rhee, and to Rhee's previous threats to resume military action, Nehru said:

"Our party has stated less its demands are accorded to within a stated time, it reserves the right to start military operations against."

Agreements have been in a d d and assurances given which have not been fully made public, and we don't know how far they might come in the way of full discussion of this problem in the political conference."

U. S. Negotiator in Phone Strike Picture

ST. LOUIS, Mo., (UP) — A federal conciliator was called into negotiations between Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. and the CIO Communications Workers Union today after a meeting which broke up with the negotiators "farther apart than ever," according to a union spokesman.

The conciliator was invited to participate by company negotiators last night. He was to begin talks with both parties in the contract dispute sometime today.

Frank Lonergan, vice president of the union's district 8, which represents more than 50,000 Bell employees in six states, said the last meeting Saturday "showed we were farther apart than ever."

"The company failed to make any moves on anything important — in other words, money," Lonergan said.

Red Strikes in France Are Doomed

By EDWARD M. KORRY

PARIS (UP) — Communist efforts to prolong the nationwide strike wave appeared doomed today as many workers returned to their jobs while only a handful obeyed Red orders to stage sit-down strikes.

The Red moves were particularly unsuccessful in the Marseilles area, traditionally a Communist hot-spot, where factory after factory reported workers appearing on the job in force.

At Marseilles the Communists had instructed members of the Red-dominated CGT metal workers union to begin sit-down strikes as they returned from their annual paid summer vacations.

But the handful of militants who followed the Red edict quietly left the plants when steel-helmeted police ordered them out.

In Paris, bleary-eyed union leaders emerged from all-night meetings. The more Moderate Catholic and Socialist union chiefs sought to keep control of the nationwide walkout from falling into Communist hands or toppling the government of Premier Joseph Laniel.

Conditions in the capital were improving slowly. Fifty-eight of the Paris' public buses went into operation and 200 of the 280 subway stations opened.

American Express officials said things "are definitely quieting down." They said some of the Paris sightseeing tours had empty seats, "a rare event for this time of year and an indication of how many tourists have quit France or refused to come at the last minute because of the strikes."

Scattered Showers Sprinkle Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — There were scattered showers — most of them mere sprinkles — in Arkansas yesterday and last night, but only one point, Ozark, had a rain of any consequence.

The U. S. Weather Bureau here said 2.02 inches of rain fell at Ozark during the 24 hours ended at 6:30 a. m. today. The fall was local, the bureau said.

Camden reported a fall of .03 inch; Sugar Loaf Mountain .01; aid to Korea.

Small Girl Is Injured in Unusual Accident

Rebecca Ruth O'Dell, 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert O'Dell, was injured late Saturday at her home when the liquid from the inside of a golf ball sped into her eyes.

She was rushed to a Texarkana hospital and the liquid, usually a white lead solution, was washed from her eyes. Her condition was reported good today.

She was cutting the golf ball with a knife and when the inner rim containing the liquid punctured, the white lead seemingly exploded into her eyes.

21 Arkansas Prisoners Accounted for

By The Associated Press

Thirty-four of an estimated 71 Arkansas prisoners of war in Korea have been accounted for.

Accuse Reds of Building Up New Airport in Korea

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP) — Returning American war prisoners accused the Communists today of building a strong new Air Force in North Korea in violation of the armistice agreement.

The information that the Reds were using the truce to strengthen their aerial punch was offered after 73 more Americans went through "freedom gate" as "Operation Big Switch" neared the half-way mark.

The freed prisoners said they saw, twin-engine, swept-wing jet bombers put on a show over the North Korean capital of Pyongyang after the armistice had been signed.

Terms of the armistice stipulated that neither side was to increase its military potential during the truce.

When the armistice was signed last July 26, the Communists did not have jet bombers in North Korea.

Cpl. Charles W. Jewell, 23, of Wilmington, Del., and Pfc. Leopoldo L. Howard, 23, of Mancos, Colo., said they saw the twin-engine jets when they passed through Pyongyang on their way to freedom.

"They were flying in groups of three," Howard said. "There were some Yaks there too. It was some kind of demonstration. I think they were preparing a welcome for the prisoners they were getting back."

Jewell said MIG-15 jet fighters also took part in the demonstration.

Cpl. Michael A. Ginnelli, 22, of Huntington Station, N. Y., and Cpl. Richard L. Delaney, 21, of Necedah, Wis., confirmed the other prisoners' report.

Far East Air Force headquarters in Tokyo said the planes fitted that of the Russian IL-28, a twin jet light bomber.

Slayer of Arkansas Man Is Girl of 16

OKLAHOMA CITY (UP) — An Arkansas man who was fatally shot last summer in Texas by a 16-year-old girl because she "needed some money" had been identified as Frank Mize, 53, of Black Hope, Ark., state crime bureau Chief O. K. Blivins said here today.

Blivins said the victim was identified by his daughter, Lillian Smith of Enid, Okla.

Mize's body was found last summer on a lonely road near Decatur, Tex. He had been shot 10 times with a .22 caliber rifle.

Virginia Pugmire, 17, confessed last month she had killed the man because she needed some money. She said Mize was hitchhiking near Texarkana, Tex., and she picked him up and later shot him.

Doctors at the state hospital at Wichita Falls, Tex., tested the girl and found her sane. Authorities said she probably would be committed to the Gainesville State Home for Girls until she reaches 18, when she probably will be tried for murder.

Texas authorities said a gun, which the Pugmire girl said she used to shoot Mize, was found in New Mexico where the girl said she had dumped it. Tests proved the gun was the one used in the shooting of the Arkansas man.

Cherry Wants No Part of Senate Race

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Cherry today said he would take no part in the 1954 Senate race "as long as they leave me alone."

And he repeated that he would be a candidate for a second term as governor.

Cherry didn't elaborate on the "leave me alone" statement, which he made at his first news conference after returning from a three-week trip to the west coast.

Former Gov. Uld McMath is expected to oppose Sen. John L. McClellan next year and there has been speculation that pre-McMath forces would seek a strong opponent for Cherry to keep the governor busy with his own race.

McClellan openly supported Cherry when the latter defeated McMath for governor last year.

One-sided Romance

Dear Miss Dix: For the past two years I have been dating a man who is in love with me and wants to marry me. I am 31 and not particularly attractive. I know the man will make a good husband, but I would have to keep on working since he doesn't make enough to support a wife plus his mother. However, my real problem is that I don't love him. Could I be happy married to someone I respect, but didn't love? I do feel so lonely. I long for companionship. Do you think I should marry the man or wait until I find someone I really love? NELL.

A Difficult Task
Answer: If you marry a man you don't love, marriage will demand a great deal more sacrifice from you than it would if you loved your husband. The reason for this is that what we do for those we love seldom is in the nature of sacrifice, but it is much more difficult to exert effort for people we don't love. For instance, if you married this man you would eventually share a home with your mother-in-law. For a husband you loved it would be a pleasure to go out of your way to create a happy atmosphere under such circumstances; but could you do it for him if you didn't love him?

Answer: Your husband is absolutely right in his contention that a girl who is called upon to meet people should have an attractive appearance. She is his representative in business, just as you are in home. Of course, there's no denying that personal office workers cause sleepless nights for many a wife, but in most cases the anxiety is unfounded. Secretaries have their own lives to lead, too, and to most of them a boss is just the man who pays the salary.

Dear Miss Dix: Recently, my husband's people wrote asking him for $25 a year toward their support. I didn't want him to send it and when he did I felt him. I never have been able to get along with his grandparents, who raised him. Do you think I should go back to him? L. G.

Answer: Not unless you can do so with a change of heart. Don't you think grandparents who have sacrificed so much for a boy are entitled to some recognition in their old age? After all, they put their efforts into raising a good husband for you, and you are sure making a sorry return for their investment. Learn how to acquire a little tolerance and compassion, then return home.

Dorothy Dix will reply to all letters that come to her through this newspaper.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

"AS I'VE said before, repented, I don't know," Dave retorted to his brother's demand to know when he'd come home.

"How long won't you know?" "Let's skip it, George."

"You can't. I can't. There's Ben, there's the business. And you holed up in here all fall, all winter, and now. Maybe not exactly holed up, after all. Jordan said—"

"I know what he said. He phoned you, he said he'd seen me standing on a street talking to a girl. So you call off your dog, jump in your car—"

"You mean it's none of my business? I think it is. You chuck everything and take off as if you hadn't a responsibility or tie in the world. I stood for it, so did Em. We thought perhaps it would help you. We gave you time—plenty of time. It's running out—"

Now he sat down, looking very tired. "Dave, this girl—what's her name?"

"Karen Howard."

"Jordan wasn't sure. It was the same girl?"

"Yes."

"She's just a kid."

"A very nice kid."

"I thought so. Dave, there isn't anything in this, is there?"

"No."

Dave drew a deep breath. There was not, there couldn't be, unless—

George said: "I could do with a drink, if you have anything. On second thought, never mind."

Dave got up, brought Scotch, a glass, and went out for ice. Returning with the ice and a pitcher of water, he said: "Go ahead. It doesn't bother me. I daresay I could return to light social drinking if I wanted to. But I don't."

"Still, you keep it around."

"A symbol of hospitality, that's all."

George drank. He said presently: "Dave, you've always been on the level with me. If you swear there's nothing in this—"

Dave answered, his voice rising as it hadn't for months: "I don't have to swear. I answered your question. It stands. I've made friends here, something I didn't expect or even want. Karen's one of them, along with the Rogers family and a few people in the village and town. They come here when they wish. Karen comes to paint, outdoors. Sometimes I see her, sometimes not. The Rogers hunted here last fall. It's all of the same piece."

"I'm sorry," said George. "But you know the Westers, particularly Jordan, ever since his extracurricular fling—you remember, when the gal from Pelham visited the Tiltons? Well, I suppose he's been looking for skeletons in other guys' closets, for flaws in their armor. But it seemed a little too much. First, I had to cope with the rumor that you and Em had split up, then with the talk that you had T.E., and finally this, with Jordan whispering at me over the wire. . . . He did a bit of embroidery; beautiful girl—I don't think she's even pretty, Dave—and how you looked as if you'd taken off 10 years; and that you didn't hear them when they called, you were so absorbed. . . ."

"Very charming picture."

"Don't get sore—although I dare say you have the right. Anyway, I didn't want to tell Maria; if there was anything to this, it was between us. Last night I couldn't sleep, so I got up after the late news, called the golf out, packed a bag and set the alarm. I had to talk to you, Dave."

"All right, so we've talked. How about taking a walk round outside before we turn in? I usually do."

Stars, the smell of running water, faint, cool, the balsam smell, the earth-fragrance.

"Tell me about the winter; what was it like?"

"It would take all night. But I can describe it briefly. It was cold, it snowed, and it froze. It stayed cold and sometimes it blew. And then it was even colder."

"I could do better myself. I'm anxious to see this by daylight. It's a nice camp. I thought you were nuts when you phoned to say you'd bought. You'll sell the river cottage now you have this?"

George had urged him to sell, more than once, since Tim died.

"Perhaps, but I'll have to talk to Em about that first."

"You've heard from her?"

"Not long ago."

They went in to bed. George hoisted himself into the upper bunk, grunting. Once there, he commented, astonished, "Say, this is pretty good!"

He slept immediately, but Dave did not.

In the morning, over breakfast, and the first cigar: "This is all right," George remarked, looking from the windows. "How's the fishing?"

"Fair to good."

"You hunt last fall?"

"Once, and no luck. But others have it."

"Suppose, next fall, just you and I—?" said George. "Is it a date?"

"Sure," said Dave, smiling.

Next fall. Where would he be, with whom?

He regarded his brother with affection. He thought, I've missed him. I didn't know that till now. He said it, badly. "I've missed you, George."

"Same here. Look, Dave, a matter came up the other day—"

Business, a problem, comparatively minor. Dave listened at first politely then with impatience, and finally with increasing interest. He said, "You can't handle Garrett that way. I've told you so a dozen times."

"He's a prima donna!"

"All right. But useful. Sings a good tune, saves us considerable money."

"What's your advice?"

Dave gave it at length, while George listened. "Okay, we'll try it your way," George agreed.

Dave thought: Either he made that up or he already settled it. Sometimes, you weren't quite sure about business for months. He hadn't cared. Suppose he didn't make it up, watching to see if I'd react? Suppose he goes a step too far with Garrett and we lose the best man we have?

School was out. The Rogers boys had their farm chores to do, and Joe, in addition, got a part-time job halfway into town, helping a friend of his father's who was short-handed. Driving to town one day shortly after noon, Dave saw him trudging along the road, stopped and picked him up.

"Glad to be out of school, Joe?"

"You can say that again, Mr. Barton."

Dave hesitated. Cas had told him that he had talked over Joe's future with Mrs. Rogers. She'd been agreed that if the boy was willing—and Dave still of the same mind, a few years from now—

"Well," said Cas, "like I said, it's up to the boy. But we think you kindly, Dave, for the opportunity."

"How'd you like to come down and spend a holiday with me some time, Joe?"

Joe's eyes shone. He said, "I'd like that fine, Mr. Barton."

"And after you're in college," Dave went on, feeling his way. "Or even before, you might like to take a look at the kind of business my brother and I run. If it interested you, we could make a deal." He smiled at the boy. "That is," he added, "if you stayed in college long enough to graduate."

"The drug business?" Joe asked after a moment.

"That's it. Sounds dull, doesn't it? But it isn't. You could even say it's romantic, also vital. You take a map and look at the queer places, all over the world, from which some of the ingredients have to come. You think of the men in laboratories, working their hearts out to discover, to create really, the things that eventually come in bottles, the drugs that save lives."

"I'll send you some books one day. If you think they'd interest you."

He looked at Joe. The boy's face was brightly white, then scarlet. He said, "Well, gee, Mr. Barton, I don't know what to say."

"Don't say anything. I've talked to your father—he says it's up to you. That's how I feel. And there's lots of time ahead. I think mine is a good business, Joe. It's constructive, and it doesn't stand still. It can't. My grandfather—he was a doctor—began it; and it came down to me and my brother. If my son had lived he would have taken it over one day. Provided he wanted to."

"You start out wanting to be a fireman, maybe," said Joe, after a while, "then you want to be an aviator. Almost every day it's something different. You sort of don't know exactly."

"Of course not. As I told you, there's time and to spare. And no hard feelings, Joe, if you tell me some day that you've decided to be a doctor or an engineer, a lawyer, a storekeeper, or a school teacher."

"Well, I guess not," said Joe firmly. "It's tough enough learning, without teaching!"

"This the place?"

"The next one, on the left. Red barn. Mr. Morse don't—doesn't—keep things up like pop. But it's hard for him. His son was drafted, and the girls don't help much. He had a stroke a year ago. It slowed him up some. Herd'd like to work here too, but pop says no. He's got enough to do at home. Herd likes farming, Mr. Barton."

"So I hear. You don't?"

"I don't mind. But I wouldn't want to be a farmer." He squinted at the sky. "Could rain by night. I didn't listen to the radio. Thought it would, this morning. Did you notice the sky last night, Mr. Barton? Yellow. It was a sure sign of rain."

I have heard it said that you can achieve new peace of mind by observing the yellow-bellied sapsucker in its natural habitat. That may be true. But I'd rather try to work out a negotiated peace with my own natural habitat and let the yellow-bellies sapsucker envy me.

But, of course, birds have more sense than to take up a hobby of people-watching.

I'm sure it will alarm nobody if I happen to feel that this whole business of making a hobby the ball and end-all is a dangerous mistake.

It tends to lead people in the wrong direction—away from themselves and the reality of their own existence. If they are bored or oppressed by their home life or job, instead of trying to fertilize their barren acres, this overemphasis on hobbies persuades them to take up something else (three nights a week and all day on weekends. Is this really enough to satisfy seems to me it's like trying to frigate a desert by wetting your head.

Meteorology Month
November is one of the best months for observing meteors since, each year, during this month, we pass through several swarms of these particles.

AEA Asked to Push School Equalization
ARKADELPHIA (AP)—Arkansas Education Association members are being asked to help push state efforts to equalize white and Negro schools.

An AEA legislative committee proposed that the group adopt a resolution that "every child should have an opportunity for a 9-months term for 12 years."

This proposal must be submitted to local AEA units for approval. Then it will be presented in November to the AEA council on Education, the groups governing body.

Little Doubt as to Series Participants

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

With six weeks to go, the baseball season has just about boiled down to a question of who's going to pitch the World Series opener for the New York Yankees and the Brooklyn Dodgers.

No one could blame the participants Remember 1951. But with 10 to play and game heads, the current pays are getting lumpy. With the Yankees and Dodgers ticket sellers, both League leaders, have identified 75-75 records.

The Yankees enjoyed a profitable Sunday, picking up a game and a half on Chicago and two full games on Cleveland by knocking off the Philadelphia A's 2-0 and 2-1. Chicago forced to Detroit.
Ralph Branca 3-2, and Cleveland dropped a pair to the last place St. Louis Browns 7-6 and 7-5. Washington and Boston divided a double in the other American League game. Mel Parnell winning 1-0 for the Red Sox 4-1 and Speer Shaw taking the second for Washington 7-1 despite Ted Williams home run.

Brooklyn ran its winning streak to nine by knocking off the old Pittsburgh Pirates twice 3-1 and 2-1. Milwaukee kept step by sweeping two from Chicago 4-2 and 6-2.

The New York Giants rained
Robert Roberts' bid for his 21st victory by knocking him out in the eighth inning of an 8-1 game and also whipped the Phillies in the second game 4-1. Cincinnati edged St. Louis 3-2 but the Cards grabbed the second 6-2 behind Stan Mus-kies. The split left St. Louis tied with the Phils for third place, 13 games back.

Vic Raschi came up with a five-hit shutout of the A's to win his 10th with the help of Phil Rizzo's batting. Little Phil hit a homerun with two on and advanced in two games with a double to down Alex Keller.

Albie Reynolds, surprise starter, lasted only one inning of the second game when the Yanks needed a five-hit relief effort by Johnny Sain to whip Charley Bishop. Rizzo drove in the tying run and scored the tie-breaker in the sixth.
Branca had to save off a ninth-inning rally by the White Sox to win for Detroit. The tying run was on third when pinch hitter
Bob Elliott fled out to end the game.

Harry Brecheen and Dick Littlefield, both working in relief, dealt damaging blows to what was left of Cleveland's pennant hopes by combing a pair for the Browns.
Brecheen pitched 3 2-3 innings, facing the minimum of 11 batters, to win on Dick Kuyssak's single.
Littlefield, first game starter, received credit for the second game after St. Louis knocked out Bob Lemon. Eddy Wynn, another reliever, was charged with the opener.
The third-place Indians now are 12 games behind New York.

Williams made his first start for the Red Sox in the second game after a few pinch-hitting jobs but his homer and double weren't enough to save Boston. Ted didn't play the entire game, leaving with previously announced plans for his gradual conditioning program. Parnell needed Ellis Kinder's 35th relief job and a sensational catch by Jim Piersall on Mickey Vernon's near-homer to become the American's first 17-game winner in the opener.

Duke Snider hit three home runs, making it 27 for the year, as the Dodgers bowled over Pittsburgh twice. Preacher Roe scored 12 twice in the first game. Carl Erskine needed a hand from Clem
Labine to win his 14th over Mery Dickson when the Pirates rallied with four in the eighth.

Low Burde, on relief, and 23-year-old Bob Puhl, with a three-hit complete game, did the pitching for Milwaukee against the Cubs. Eddie Mathews triple in the eighth scored two sons for a 2-2 edge. Puhl didn't allow a hit until Dee Fondy opened the sixth with a double and coasted home after the Braves' Koed Bob Rush in the fourth.

Little Loop Start to Play Here Tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — It is difficult to recall that the resurgency of any baseball manager ever before shaken this city and its outlying precincts since President Horace Stoneham of the Giants connected Leo Durocher and made him a star to another two-year contract.

Many were shaken when they met Durocher and his staff, and others met his stonily defiant and both Stoneham and his manager argued far into the night that Durocher was blameless for the plight of his team.

When it came down to either resurrecting an opinion or getting out, as were forced to side with the manager, Durocher, as well as Durocher, and he had managed over the years to pile up an amazing number of enemies, many of whom never saw him in the flesh and happen not to be one of them.
We know his faults, but believe in his good as a baseball manager and there is in the game, not excepting Coney Island and Charlie Dressen.

It is true that Leo made a grave mistake in the spring, when he believed he had a pennant winner, but that is not necessarily a qual at his managerial ability. The quality of a baseball club, which is made up of a myriad of young men of varying temperaments, is a very elusive thing to calculate, and Durocher will not be the last manager to be misled.

All it takes is for one or two stars in whom a pilot has great faith to fall down on him, or for a small spark of dissension to ignite a defeatist complex.

Our own feeling has been that the question of Durocher's continued tenure at the Polo Grounds never would have arisen if a young Negro named Willie Mays had been playing center field for the Giants the past two seasons instead of being in the service. No one has suggested that Leo was not a great manager and a model character after Willie joined his team during the 1951 season.

It was no great secret in Phoenix last spring that Leo and other Giants officials thought Willie was going to be spring. The pitchers eyes glinted at the thought of having Willie out there back of them, and much of Durocher's enthusiasm undoubtedly stemmed from his dreams of a lineup which would include the fled Alabama boy.

Things were never quite the same after the bad news came.
Leo continued to drive himself harder than any other manager in the game and to shout it up, but the problem of rallying his forces began at once and have continued up to now. The club's lineup has been the most untested in either league as it stumbled around for the first half of the race and then suddenly went into a complete collapse.

Our only complaint with Stoneham concerns his timing. He might have given Durocher his big vote of confidence earlier, when it was fairly obvious that he didn't have the horses, instead of waiting until the house fell in.

Manager Hugh Poland ordered two of his strongest workhorses into harness tonight in an effort to knock Atlanta out of the Southern Association pennant race and strengthen the Nashville Vols' grip on first place.

Poland picked Jack Harshman and Jim Constable, both left-handers, as his starting pitchers in tonight's important doubleheader with the Crackers. Harshman, the former shugging first baseman, will be going for his 20th victory of the season. He has lost seven Constable has a 16-10 mark.

The Vols came from behind yester-

7-6. Mobile and Little Rock split a doubleheader, the Bears taking the nightcap 2-1. Birmingham beat Chattanooga 5-2 in a game halted for Little Rock in the second game. Manager Paul Campbell came through with a bases-loaded single in the bottom of the last inning to drive in the tying and winning run. Huggins retired the last 16 batters in order.

In the first game, the Travs scored twice in the third inning but Bill Harris zeroed them the last nine frames. Harris, who seared eight hits, scored the tie-

Navy Pilot in Crash Landing

LAGRANGE (AP) — A Navy pilot scouted his F8F Bearcat to a belly landing in a cotton field near here and walked away shaken but unhurt.

mitted he felt right at home. In civilian life he is a cotton duster

President Visits Dying Youngster

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH
DENVER (AP) — To 6-year-old Paul Henry Haley, who is dying of cancer, President Eisenhower is "a bigger and better man" than Hopalong Cassidy.

Now, to those who aren't parents of small boys, that may sound incredible.

But ordinarily a president doesn't cut much ice when children match him up with Hopalong.
No so with Paul. Dwight Eisenhower is the hero of his tragically foreshortened life.

That's the result of a surprise visit the President paid Paul yesterday.

It started when Eisenhower picked up the Rocky Mountain News before church. There was a picture of cowboy-outfitted Paul, his arm around his mother Joan.
The story was in the form of a letter by reporter David Stolberg.
"I'm writing this story to you,
Mr. President, for a young fellow who hasn't learned to write," it said in part.

"He wants to see you, Ike, and although he doesn't know it, that's his dying wish. . . He may live as long as two months, at most 18 doctors say."

The reporter said Paul is ill on cancer.

Eisenhower decided to see Paul.
And he did, unannounced.

Doubt, Fear Is Life of a Prisoner

(Editor's Note: Frank Noel, Associated Press photographer, is a free man again after more than 32 months as a prisoner of the Chinese Reds in North Korea. Now in Tokyo for medical and dental treatment necessitated by his long captivity, Noel has collaborated with AP Correspondent Glen Clements to tell of some of the things he and his fellow Americans saw and endured as prisoners of war. This is the first of three articles.)

By FRANK NOEL.
As told to Glen Clements
(TOPEKA) — Live as a prisoner of the Chinese Communists was a thing of doubt and fear — doubt of what our captors would do to us next, and fear that an incursion would be made by some fellow prisoner who had become an informer.

There is a strange thing about all the Communists I have met. They trust one another — especially their fellow Communists. Somehow, they managed to instill this same feeling of distrust into their prisoners, even though these prisoners had fought bravely side by side before being captured.

Some few men turned informers. Others, in the constant questioning by the Communists, said things the Communists did not like.

As a result, lots of us went into the "hole" — a cell in which a man could neither stand nor stretch.

One particularly bad hole was reserved for prisoners the Reds hated most. When you went into that hole, you stayed for weeks without ever leaving it, even to go to the latrine. You sat and slept in your own filth.

In winter you froze, day and night. In summer you sweated. A little food was thrown in once in a while, and Chinese guards were on duty at all times.

Many of us spent days, weeks, months in the hole, simply as punishment for not thinking the way the Communists wanted us to think.

A Red prison is one of the cruelest of tortures ever devised by man.

There are still Americans up there — some of them driven insane in prison.

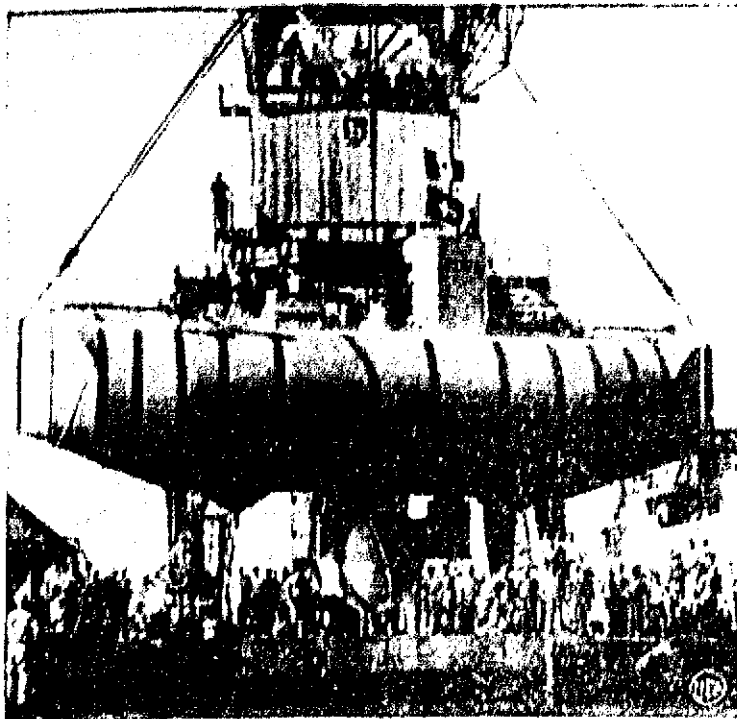

I am sure there will be some of them there when the Chinese say repatriation has been finished. These men will be a club which the Reds will hold over our heads in the post-armistice political conference.

I was captured Nov. 30, 1950. In the early days of my imprisonment, the Chinese took some American officers into Antung, Manchuria. I know of one who said the people on the streets there were very friendly.

So far as I know, all of these Americans were soon returned to North Korea, but there are other Americans today in Chinese territory. They are the ones who swallowed the Communist line and chose not to come back with the rest of us.

Not all of them, however, are there of their own volition. I am sure.

I know of one man who is among seven who left us at Prison Camp

BUILT FOR HIGHEST LOW: Prof. August Picard's bathysphere is suspended in mid-air during its launching at Castellans, Italy. The famed Swiss-born scientist will use the strange-looking vessel to explore the depths of the Tyrrhenian Sea. The "ship" consists of two parts. The lower part is where the professor and his son will conduct their experiments and in which they hope to reach the lowest depth ever visited by man.

Carney Takes Over Naval Operations

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 (AP) — Admiral Robert B. Carney, who took over today as chief of naval operations, the last member of the "old guard" of top military leaders to be installed.

He took office with a warning that the nation should be "practically concerned" over the "cold war," but without whitening away of professional officers' compensation.

Carney checked the concern which has been expressed with frequency by other top military leaders that the ablest young men are leaving the service for private industry because of the low pay of such "fringe benefits" as compensation.

Carney said there has been no change in the pay scale for naval and military officers, but that he will study the matter.

The 53-year-old admiral was sworn in as the Navy's top official in a brief ceremony in Navy Secretary Robert B. Anderson's office.

Carney replaces Adm. William M. Fechteler, whose term was cut short by the administration. Fechteler will replace Carney as commander of Allied forces in southern Europe.

Fechteler's staff were sworn in today by Adm. Arthur W. Radford as chairman and Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway as Army chief. Gen. Nathan F. Twining, the fourth member of the top military body, has been in office for over a month as Air Force chief of staff.
